The right to terminate is waived if not exercised before the earliest of:

Washington, DC 20002

Dear Residents:

The District of Columbia Water and Sewer Authority (DC Water) is providing the lead test results of water samples collected in your home on 11/28/2021. These results are a snapshot of lead levels at the time samples were taken and can indicate if a lead source is present within the service pipe or household plumbing. A copy of these results can be found on your MyDCWater.com portal.

- First draw: Measures lead release from the faucet and approximately 10-20 ft of pipe feeding the faucet.
- Second draw: Measures lead release from the service pipe (the pipe that connects the water main in the street to your household plumbing) and household plumbing.

Sample	Lead Level (parts per billion - ppb)
First Draw	0
Second Draw	0

If this information is inaccurate, please contact DC Water at 202-612-3440.

Service Pipe Material

Public Space: COPPER

Private Property: COPPER

If lead is present in your drinking water, if you have pipes or plumbing fixtures that contain lead, or if you don't know the material type, you should take the following steps to minimize potential lead exposure until all sources of lead have been removed. Learn more at dcwater.com/reducelead.

1. Identify and remove lead sources.

- If present, replace lead service pipes with copper. DC Water administers a lead service pipe replacement program, and will cover costs of replacement in public space, if you pay for replacement on private property. Learn more at dcwater.com/replacelead or call the Water Quality Department at 202-612-3440. You may also email lead@dcwater.com.
- Replace household galvanized plumbing. Lead can accumulate over time inside corroded galvanized pipes, and be released even after lead service pipe replacement. Visit dcwater.com/identifylead for a guide to identifying household plumbing.
- Install lead-free plumbing fixtures certified to meet NSF Standard 61 Annex G (NSF 61-G). Effective in 2014, fixtures that are labeled "lead-free" cannot contain more than 0.25 percent lead.
- Lead solder may be present on copper pipes installed before 1987. Plumbing work can cause small particles to loosen and detach. Remove faucet aerators and run the cold water for at least 10 minutes from each faucet following the work activity.

2. Flush your pipes before using any tap water for drinking or cooking, especially if water has not been used for several hours.

- Run cold water until the temperature changes, and then allow it to run for an additional two minutes.
- Lead and other metals can dissolve in water when it sits in pipes for a few hours. Running water brings in fresh water from the water main.

3. Use only cold water for drinking and cooking.

- This includes water for ice, beverages and infant formula.
- Hot tap water can cause a greater amount of lead to release from plumbing.
- Boiling water does not reduce lead levels.

4. Filter your water if there are known or suspected lead sources.

- Select a filter certified to meet NSF Standard 53 for lead removal. The filter package should specifically list the device as certified for removing the contaminant "lead."
- "Point-of-use" (POU) filters can be installed above or below the faucet or sink. These filters should have an antimicrobial protection to minimize bacterial growth on the filter.
- Visit the NSF International website for certified drinking water filters at www.nsf.org/Certified/DWTU or call 1-800-673-8010.
- Routinely replace filter cartridges according to the manufacturer's instructions.

5. Remove and routinely clean faucet aerators every 3 months.

- Metal particles can accumulate in the faucet aerator, located at the tip of the faucet.
- Remodeling or plumbing work can vibrate pipes, releasing metal particles from lead solder or lead pipes.
- Following any work activity, remove faucet aerators and run cold water for at least 10 minutes. After work activity, the kitchen faucet aerator should be removed and cleaned weekly for 4 weeks.

Drinking water is essentially lead-free when it leaves the Washington Aqueduct treatment plant and travels through lead-free water mains in the street, but lead can enter water when it comes in contact with pipes or plumbing fixtures that contain lead. The potential for lead in drinking water varies among homes in the District.

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead can damage the kidneys and brain, and has been linked with deficiencies in neurodevelopment. Adults with kidney problems and high blood pressure can be affected by low levels of lead more than healthy adults. Lead from other sources (such as lead-based paint and contaminated soil) can increase a person's overall exposure, which adds to the effects of lead in water.

The District's Department of Energy and Environment (DOEE) offers information on blood lead testing for children, lead poisoning prevention, lead safety measures, and is the agency charged with enforcing the District's lead laws. For more information, contact DOEE at 202-535-2600 or visit www.doe.dc.gov/lead. You can also visit EPA's website at www.epa.gov/lead and CDC's website at www.cdc.gov/lead.

District tap water meets all requirements of the Safe Drinking Water Act, and required sampling at household taps show lead levels across the city remain well below the federal limit of 15 ppb, known as the "action level". If this action level is exceeded in more than ten percent of homes tested, utilities must carry out corrective treatment and other requirements. The level at which there is no known or expected risk to health is 0 ppb, known as the "maximum contaminant level goal." This goal allows for a margin of safety. Visit dcwater.com/leadcompliance to learn more about DC Water's lead and copper testing and federal regulations.

No amount of lead is considered safe, so it is important to follow the guidance above until all sources of lead have been removed. For more information, contact the Drinking Water Division at 202-612-3440 or visit www.dewater.com/lead.

Sincerely,

Maureen Schmelling
